PACKING-HOUSE SALE

From 6 o'clock until we close, you'll KINGAN & CO. WILL ABSORB THE MOORE PACKING COMPANY.

> Negotiations Pending, Which Will Probably Be Consummated Next Week-Some Probable Effects.

Negotiations are now on for the sale of the interests of the Moore Packing Company, which is one of the largest concerns in the city. The sale will propably be consummated before the close of next week, for everything is in readiness now for the transfer. Yesterday afternoon there was a meeting of the directors of the Belt Railroad and Stock Yards Company, at which former price-in Ladies' and road and Stock Yards Company, at which Men's Kid Gloves you ever saw... 1 pr the Moore Packing Company was granted the right to lease its interests. This permission is regarded as equivalent to permission for a sale. It is announced on very good authority that Kingan & Company are the proposed buyers, who purpose to make the plant of the Moore company a part of their extensive establishment. The parties interested in the transfer decline to name any figure which may be under consideration, but they do not deny that matters have reached a stage where the sale is sure

The Moore Packing Company was backed on its organization, and since, by the Stock Yards company. The action of the latter in fostering the new concern is what gave rise to differences between Kingan & Company and the Stock Yards company, which difference came near causing the establishment of a new stock yards in this city. The present building of the Moore Packing Company was constructed by the Stock Yards company, at a cost of someof the best equipped in the West, although not the largest. The fatilities of the plant are for killing 2,000 cr more hogs a day, although the capacity has been taxed but a few times since the establishment of the company.

In fostering the Moore Facking Com-The building for the new company was built on the stock yards grounds. The plant has excellent facilities for the packing business, for the buildings, beside being complete, are handy to the yards and in a position to obtain shipping advantages with little cost. The property is desirable. The local representatives of Kingin & Company decline to speak concerning the proposed purchase. They acknowledge that a change is coming, but they say the matter is not in a condition for the publication of the particulars. The officers of the Moore Packing Company are equally reticent. Mr. Samuel Rauh, president of the company, when asked last evening concerning the sale, said:

"There is nothing to say at this time. In a few days there will be something to say. All I can possibly state at this time is that there will very probably be a change in the management of the Moore Packing Company within a few days. I cannot say what the plans are, nor can I give any of the particulars. We have the permission of the Stock Yards company to make any changes we may wish."

As the Stock Yards company owns the building occupied by the Moore Packing Company, the former naturally has something to say concerning any contemplated change. The report is that at the meeting of the directors yesterday afternoon it was stated that Kingan & Company are the proposed buyers of the Moore company. The latter has been fairly successful since its establishment.

There is some speculation among those who know of the deal concerning what will be done with the new plant when Kingan & Company gain control. Last winter a branch of the Kingan company, located at Kansas City and known as the Reid Bros.' Kansas City and known as the Reid Bros.' packing house, was burned. The branch has not been rebuilt, although the business of the concern demands it. Sioux City is now offering Kingan & Company inducements to locate the branch in that city, but because of the proposed purchase of the Moore Packing Company it is generally thought that the branch of Reid Brothers will be re-established here. There is also some talk to the effect that Kingan & Company will devote the building now controlled by the Moore company exclusively to the packing of beef, for in the last few years the company has extended its business considerably in that direction. Should such a move be made it will give Kingan & Company room at the present plant for packing hogs which is now used for beef packing purposes, and at the same time make Indianapolis more important as a beef packing center. The transfer of interests is regarded as one of the most important which has been considered in this city for many months.

Members of the committee think that the premises will sell for $60,000 or $70,000. Just where another building will be erected in the event of the sale of No. 3 the board has not decided. Some of the members think the money should be used to settle up the board's deficit at the end of the year. The question of allowing pupils living outside of the city to attend the high school without tuition was raised again last night. It came up in the form of a letter from the new pastor of Brightwood M. E. Church. His daughter has been attending high school and he asked the board to throw off the customary tuition in his case. On the motion of Commissioner

Russe the request was refused. D. W. Coffin, in a communication, suggested that the board pay $5 a month rent for Mayer's Chapel, which, he says, is used every Friday afternoon by the pupils attending school at West and Mc-Carty streets. The communication was referred to a committee

The committee on finance was instructed to accept the offer of Mrs. Celeste D. McCoy, who is a joint owner with the board of a piece of property left by the late W. D. McCoy. Mrs. McCoy agrees to pay $1,500 in cash if the board will make her a quit claim deed to the property. The board will probably purchase, the recommendation of Superitendent Goss, a complete set of the Encyclopaedia Britannica and five volumes of the Century Dictionary for use in the High School. Professor Goss has a proposition from publishers, offering to furnish the encyclopedia for $185. The people of Indianapolis gave the Oberlin Glee Club a royal reception last night at Tomlinson Hall by filling nearly every seat in that vast auditorium. The entertainment was one of the Y. M. C. A. lecture course. This is the third concert the men have given on this tour. They have not had time to become wearled with travel, work and social attentions and so their voices were in prime condition. There are about twenty men in the club. There is a preponderance of bassos and some fine voices in the list of singers. They gave a varied programme, consisting of ballads, glees and comic songs. After a tremendous applause for the "Frog chorus" the announcement was made from the stage that there had been so many requests for some of their comic songs that the club would favor the audience, and then followed such a medley of nonsense that many persons could hardly hear for laughter. The soloists of the club are Mr. E. P. Leonard, Mr. Paul B. Patterson and Mr. W. K. Breckinridge. The latter is a planist of technical ability, but lacking somewhat in color. For his playing of an "Impromptu," by Rheingold, he was heartily recalled and played a Patrol. The other soloist is Miss Lottie DeMuth, a young girl in a picture gown, with her hair down her back, who plays the violin skillfully. Her selections were an "Adagio," by Bruch, and "Ballade and Polonaise," by Vieuxtemps. She plays gracefully and easily and with considerable finish for so young a player. She was also the recipient of demonstrations of pleasure. The whole concert passed off without a flaw as far as the glee club was concerned. The one portunity of letting the audience know that ne was still on hand to close squeaky windows and put out the lights in the upper gallery during a piano number, which was only No. 6 on the programme. It was hoped that the glee club might have some social attentions shown them while here, but they arrived at 6 o'clock and left at 11 and there was no time. The club left

SEVEN PLACES IN NORTH INDIANAP-

Fired by the Police.

A gang of three burglars broke into a number of business places in North Indianapolis Thursday night, no less than seven stores having been entered. The places robbed were E. B. Sprague's news stand, Henry Mayhew's grocery, W. H. McIlvain's and Carter Stower's drug stores, Lovell's restaurant, Lewis Weber's saloon and Osborn & Zoninger's cigar factory. The places entered are all within a stone's throw of one another on Udell street, with the exception of Weber's saloon, which is two or three squares away. About a half hour before the robbery is supposed to have occurred Sergeant Corrigan and patrolmen Garber and Walker passed the corner and stopped before one of the drug stores. The officers examined the premises and found everything in good order. They walked two or three squares away and a half hour later, at the corner of Addison and Rader streets, they were standing under an awning, out of the rain, when they saw three men approaching. They were acting rather suspiciously and were ordered to halt. Instead of stopping, they quickened their pace, but patrolman Gerber grabbed one of them and the others started lown the street at a rapid gait. Sergeant Corrigan and patrolman Walker ran after them. Walker shouted to the men to halt and opened fire. One of them returned the fire, a dozen shots being exchanged The men ran on two or three blocks and were finally able to slip away across the commons. It was intensely dark, as it was raining hard and North Indianapolis has no street lamps. One of the men threw away his overcoat as he ran. In threw away his overcoat as he ran. In one pocket a lot of cartridges were found, which indicates that the men were prepared to fight A large piece of black cloth was found in another of the pockets. It is supposed this was used for a mask. Garber's prisoner was taken to the police station, where he said his name was James Murray, and that he was a laborer. About 5 o'clock Walker was patroling the district near Brighton Beach. He saw a man he thought looked like one of the trio the officers had encountered at North Inthe officers had encountered at North In-dianapolis. Walker ordered him to halt, but he turned and ran. Walker fired and hit him in the leg, and he fell to the ground. He was sent to the police station, where he gave his name as James Carney. The robbers entered the different places by prying open the front doors with a large chisel, most of the locks being broken. They secured but little for their trouble. So The School Board is determined to dispose of the building known as school No. 3, which stands on Meridian street, near Ohio. Final action was taken in the mat-At Mayhew's grocery they got $3. At Carter Stower's and Osborn & Zoninger's they got $1.62 as the combined result of entering the two places. At McIlvain's they overlooked $1.62 in silver and took 125 pennies.
